HOUSE OF CHICKEN & WAFFLES

SOCIAL MEDIA GAME PLAN

A practical 90-day plan to build local awareness, create consistent content, and turn social attention into restaurant visits.

Prepared for: House of Chicken & Waffles
Market focus: Providence, Rhode Island
Prepared: October 2026

CORE IDEA

One restaurant visit can create content for every platform. The footage stays the same. The story, editing, caption, and call to action change based on where it is posted.

Facebook = community & conversation | Instagram = appearance & branding
TikTok = entertainment & discovery | Google = local search & conversion

1. What We Are Trying to Accomplish

The goal is not to chase followers for the sake of having a big number. The goal is to make local customers repeatedly see the restaurant, recognize the food, trust the brand, and choose to visit or order.

Objective	What Success Looks Like
Local awareness	More Providence-area customers recognizing the name and food.
Restaurant traffic	More direction requests, calls, menu views, walk-ins, and orders.
Social proof	More real reviews, customer tags, reactions, and user-generated content.
Brand recognition	A consistent look, voice, signature food shots, and clear offers.
Repeatable marketing	A workflow staff can maintain without filming three separate campaigns.

The Rule We Use to Prevent Redundancy

We film once, collect a strong library of short vertical clips, and create separate edits for each platform. We do not post the exact same edit, caption, and call to action everywhere.

Simple memory rule: Facebook talks WITH the community. Instagram SELLS the look. TikTok STARTS a reaction. Google HELPS PEOPLE FIND AND CHOOSE US.

2. Platform Playbook

FACEBOOK | Community & conversation

Recommended format: 30-60 sec video

Real-looking food, customers, staff, events, specials, restaurant atmosphere, and behind-the-scenes moments. Tell the story. Ask one easy question that invites a real response.

Primary goal: Comments, shares, local awareness, and visits.

INSTAGRAM | Appearance & branding

Recommended format: 15-30 sec Reel

Make the food look incredible. Use clean close-ups, good lighting, fast visual payoff, smooth transitions, and minimal text. Open with the strongest shot.

Primary goal: Shares, saves, profile visits, and desire.

TIKTOK | Entertainment & discovery

Recommended format: 15-45 sec

Hook immediately. Use personality, staff, humor, opinions, reactions, fast cooking footage, and curiosity. Avoid making every post feel like an ad.

Primary goal: Watch time, rewatches, comments, shares, and discovery.

GOOGLE BUSINESS PROFILE | Local search & conversion

Recommended format: Ongoing updates

Keep hours, phone, menu, website, photos, offers, and restaurant details accurate. Add fresh food photos and respond to reviews.

Primary goal: Search visibility, calls, direction requests, menu clicks, and orders.

3. One Shoot, Three Different Social Posts

Example: we film one Meal Deal from start to finish. The raw footage might include the exterior, chicken seasoning, fryer, waffle iron, toppings, sauce, syrup, final plate, employee interaction, and a customer reaction.

Platform	Opening	Edit Style	Example Message
Facebook	Finished plate or people enjoying it	Slower, natural cuts. Add staff, atmosphere, price, location, CTA.	"Providence, have you tried us yet? Who are you bringing?"
Instagram	Best food beauty shot	Fast, clean, visually polished. Minimal attractive text.	"Crispy chicken. Fresh waffle. Providence, this is your sign."
TikTok	Curiosity or opinion hook	Fast cuts. Personality and voiceover are welcome.	"You didn't know Providence had THIS."

Footage Capture Checklist

[ ] Exterior/sign

[ ] Restaurant entrance

[ ] Chicken seasoning or prep

[ ] Chicken frying

[ ] Waffle batter pouring

[ ] Waffle iron opening

[ ] Toppings and sauces

[ ] Syrup pour

[ ] Finished plate close-up

[ ] Staff personality moment

[ ] Customer reaction with permission

[ ] Busy restaurant or pickup atmosphere

Important: Shoot vertically in high quality. Capture many short clips instead of one long continuous video. This gives us flexibility when editing for each platform.

For this restaurant, I'd keep the loyalty name clean, adult, and brandable. Better options:
- House Rewards , probably my favorite
- The House Pass
- House Perks
- We Get Rewards
- Waffle Rewards
- The Regulars
- House Points
- Chicken & Waffle Rewards
- The House List
- VIP at the House
My strongest two are:
House Rewards
Super easy to say:
"Are you signed up for House Rewards?"

It sounds normal, professional, and doesn't try too hard.
The House Pass
A little more unique:
"Join the House Pass and earn rewards every time you eat with us."

That could eventually become a digital pass in Apple Wallet/Google Wallet too, which gives it room to grow.

4. Content System & Posting Cadence

Five Content Categories

1. Food

Crunch shots, syrup pours, sauce drizzles, waffle reveals, finished plates, new items.

2. Behind the Scenes

Prep, frying, batter, opening routine, rush preparation, order assembly.

3. Staff & Personality

Owner, cooks, servers, staff favorites, opinions, humor, recommendations.

4. Customers

First-bite reactions, families, celebrations, customer favorites, tagged content. Get permission when featuring people prominently.

5. Specials & Offers

Meal deals, weekend specials, limited flavors, events, catering, new menu items.

Recommended Weekly Rhythm

Day	Primary Content
Monday	Food close-up or featured menu item
Tuesday	Behind-the-scenes Story or quick video
Wednesday	Staff/personality video
Thursday	Menu feature or customer content
Friday	Strong Reel/TikTok featuring a meal
Saturday	Restaurant atmosphere, customers, or special
Sunday	Upcoming special or community-style post

Practical starting target: 3 short-form videos per week, 2 photo/carousel posts per week, Stories several times per week, and 1 Google Business update per week.

CTA Rule

Use one strong call to action that fits the platform. Do not stack "Order now, like, comment, share, follow" on every post.

5. Loyalty & Rewards: The Cluck Club

Keep the loyalty program easy enough to explain at the register in one sentence: "Join the Cluck Club, earn one stamp for each qualifying meal, and unlock rewards as you come back." The goal is repeat visits and customer recognition, not a complicated points economy.

Recommended Launch: Simple Visit Rewards

• 1 stamp for each qualifying entree or meal purchase.

• 3 stamps: small instant perk, such as a free drink upgrade or selected side add-on.

• 6 stamps: a stronger reward, such as a free classic waffle, selected side, or fixed-dollar reward approved by the owner.

• After redemption, the card resets and the customer starts the next cycle.

• Use a physical punch card or a very simple digital check-in at launch. Do not require customers to download a new app just to participate.

Creative Add-Ons That Stay Simple

Golden Waffle Day: Once or twice a month, choose an unannounced bonus day when every Cluck Club purchase earns a double stamp. Promote it through Stories the same day to create urgency without discounting the entire menu.

Bring-a-Friend Bonus: An existing member who brings a first-time customer can earn one bonus stamp when both make a qualifying purchase. Keep the rule simple and limit it to one bonus per visit.

Secret Menu Unlock: After a customer completes one full reward card, give access to an occasional members-only waffle flavor, sauce, topping, or combo. The reward feels exclusive without requiring a large discount.

Birthday Treat: If the customer voluntarily provides a birth month, offer one simple birthday-month perk. Avoid collecting more personal information than needed.

Founding Member Card: For the first 100 or 200 loyalty members, use a small "Founding Cluck Club Member" designation or card. It creates early urgency and gives regulars something distinctive without adding operational complexity.

Loyalty + Social Media Connection

• Use social media to announce bonus-stamp days, member-only menu drops, and loyalty milestones.

• Feature regular customers only with permission. A simple "Cluck Club regular of the week" can build community without forcing customers to post.

• Put a small loyalty callout on table cards, receipts, menus, and social bios so customers repeatedly see the program.

• Do not offer rewards in exchange for positive Google, Yelp, or other public reviews. Reviews must remain voluntary and unincentivized.

Operational Guardrails

• Owner approves the exact reward value before launch so food cost and margins stay protected.

• One written rule sheet should define what earns a stamp, what does not, reward expiration if any, and whether third-party delivery orders qualify.

• Staff should never have to calculate points manually. Use whole visits/stamps, not percentages or complicated tiers.

• Track redemptions weekly for the first 60 days. If customers are not using the program, simplify it before adding technology.

6. 90-Day Implementation Roadmap

MONTH 1 - BUILD

Create the foundation before spending money.

• Audit and claim the correct Facebook, Instagram, TikTok, and Google profiles.

• Standardize the restaurant name, profile photos, bio, location, website, phone, and hours.

• Confirm which public price should be promoted and clearly distinguish in-store/direct pricing from delivery-platform pricing.

• Create a shared content folder and naming system so footage is easy to reuse.

• Capture the first 2-3 weeks of vertical food and restaurant footage.

• Publish consistently and establish the visual style and voice.

MONTH 2 - GROW

Build familiarity and social proof.

• Continue consistent short-form content across all three social platforms.

• Introduce more employee personality and customer reactions.

• Ask satisfied customers for honest Google reviews.

• Repost appropriate customer tags and user-generated content.

• Engage with nearby businesses and relevant Providence-area accounts.

• Identify which hooks, menu items, and visual shots are performing best.

MONTH 3 - CONVERT

Use proven content to drive measurable business.

• Test small local Facebook and Instagram ad campaigns using strong organic posts.

- Promote limited-time specials, events, catering, or high-margin items.
- Test local food creator visits when there is a clear business goal.
- Use simple trackable offers when appropriate.
- Compare social activity with calls, direction requests, menu clicks, orders, and in-store redemptions.
- Keep what works. Stop repeating formats that consistently underperform.

7. Measurement, Guardrails & First Actions

What We Track

Include loyalty sign-ups, active members, repeat visits, rewards earned, rewards redeemed, referral bonuses, and redemption rate alongside social and Google metrics.

Area	Metrics
Discovery	Reach, video views, watch time, profile visits
Engagement	Shares, saves, comments, customer tags
Local intent	Google searches, direction requests, calls, menu/website clicks
Sales signals	Orders, walk-ins tied to promotions, offer redemptions, catering inquiries
Reputation	Review volume, review quality, owner responses

Quality Guardrails

• Never create duplicate business profiles before confirming ownership of existing profiles.

• Keep restaurant name, address, phone, website, hours, menu information, and branding consistent across platforms.

• Verify prices, specials, and hours before publishing them.

• Do not present delivery-app pricing as the restaurant's direct or in-store price unless it is actually the same.

• Get permission before prominently featuring customers, especially children.

• Do not over-edit every video. Authentic restaurant content should still look and feel real.

• Keep a master content calendar so the same promotion is not accidentally posted repeatedly.

First Implementation Actions

1. Audit every existing Facebook, Instagram, TikTok, and Google profile.
2. Confirm account ownership and login access before changing anything.
3. Create one master sheet with usernames, URLs, bios, business details, hours, links, and current issues.
4. Standardize branding and profile information.
5. Owner selects and approves the Cluck Club reward structure, qualifying purchases, and reward values.
6. Create the loyalty card/signage and a one-page staff rule sheet before announcing the program publicly.
7. Build the first two-week content library before starting a heavy posting schedule.
8. Launch the weekly posting rhythm, Cluck Club, and begin tracking results.

BOTTOM LINE

The restaurant does not need three separate content teams. It needs one disciplined content-capture system, platform-specific editing, accurate business information, and consistent local storytelling.
